Competition format

The Camel Racing competition at the OMGAD2026 will follow a traditional format adapted for national-level competition and aligned with UAE racing standards. Each race will be conducted in separate age divisions, ensuring fair and competitive participation. The competition will operate under time-based results, with the fastest finishing times determining the winners. In the event of a photo finish, official race footage and timing systems will be used for final placement confirmation.

Camels participating in the races must undergo pre-race veterinary checks to ensure their health and fitness for competition. All camels must meet minimum conditioning standards, and athletes are responsible for ensuring their camels are properly trained and cared for. Only qualified riders with proven experience in camel handling will be permitted to race.

Competition standards and rules

All races will be conducted under strict guidelines to ensure the safety, fairness, and integrity of the sport. Participants must comply with rules regarding camel eligibility, rider conduct, and equipment use. Camels must be registered, meet age and health requirements, and pass veterinary inspections prior to racing. Any form of performance enhancement, abuse, or violation of animal welfare protocols will result in immediate disqualification. The races will be officiated by certified judges, and electronic timing systems will be used to record official results.

Participants will be briefed on all safety measures implemented to protect both riders and camels throughout the competition. These measures may include mandatory orientation or training sessions, pre-race health screenings for both athletes and camels, and clear guidelines to ensure safe and responsible race day preparations.

Disqualification and penalty rules in camel racing are enforced to ensure fair competition, animal welfare, and adherence to traditional and safety standards. Participants may be disqualified for violations such as unsportsmanlike conduct, tampering with equipment, failure to follow the designated racecourse, or causing harm or distress to the camel. Additionally, non-compliance with safety regulations, failure to present required documentation may result in time penalties or exclusion from the event.

Further information regarding parking arrangements, camel stabling facilities, and participant check-in procedures will be provided in due course.
